THE MURDER IN CAMDEN.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SOUTH—THE SOUTHERN CASE.

WASHINGTON, November 3.—The papers this morning publish the following dispatch from President Johnson to General Burnside, dated October 31:

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CAMDEN, Saturday, October 31.—Our usually quiet town was thrown into a painful excitement about two o'clock to-day by the killing of a colored man named Mark Kirkland by Mr. William Kelly. It appears, from the evidence of the coroner's inquest, that Kelly had ridden his horse on the sidewalk in front of McCollum's store on Broad-street, encroaching somewhat upon the foot-path, when Kirkland, in passing, turned his horse to one side, causing Kelly to strike his head on the curb-stone. Kelly drew his revolver and fired at the man, who came to his rescue. The bullet missed Kirkland, who rushed upon Kelly and struck him a severe blow on the left side of the head. Kelly fired two more shots, both of which took effect, decapitated the negro, and then fled and exposed himself. The negro was then taken to a surgeon, who pronounced him dead. He was then carried to the police station, where he was examined by Dr. J. C. Moore, surgeon to the police force, and then turned over to the coroner, who pronounced him dead.

JOE GREEN, colored, whose store was entered by robbers a few nights since, recovered most of his goods. One of the thieves attempted to conceal some of his plunder in one of the tenebres of the university, but was haled by one of the servants, fled and left several hundred dollars' worth of tobacco—all of which were returned to the owner.
